Acknowledgements

While it would be difficult to thank all those who have contributed to this Family History there are a few people whose contribution is worth mentioning. A large part of the basis of my research came from information that was extracted by Alan Francis Carlill whilst in England during the 2nd World War, from the book "Collections for a History of the Ancient family of Carlisle" published in London in 1822. This is a book that I am looking forward to reading someday. Further research done by Gwenyth Burnett Carlill as also formed a part of the general information on Ann Burnett.

Introduction

I have been researching my family history for about 22 years but only since 1995 have I really been serious about it. I must thank all the other people (too many to name) that have helped in some way. As you research your family tree you find that you are not the only genealogist in the family. This is a great help as others may have done some of the work already, as has been my experience. A letter, phone call or a little searching on the Internet plus the generosity of others, can obtain years of research in a afternoon.

Australia is a country where the majority of the population consists of immigrants and their descendants. Convicts were sent to New South Wales between 1788 and 1842, to Tasmania between 1803 and 1848, Western Australia (men only) between 1850 and 1868, and Queensland from 1824 on.

Assisted immigrants had most of their passage paid by their government, and usually came from the British Isles and Germany. They arrived in New South Wales beginning in 1828, Victoria beginning in 1839, South Australia beginning in 1836, Queensland beginning in 1859, and the Northern Territories beginning in 1873. Unassisted immigrants could come anytime, although the various Gold Rushes in the different states were popular periods. People who came from locations other than the British Isles and Germany, such as China, the United States, and New Zealand, normally came unassisted.

This book details the story of one such unassisted immigrant, Thomas John Carlill. Thomas came to Australia in the 1840's, in what can be called the last of the pioneering days. At this stage the colony was still very young and there were many opportunities for enterprising pioneers. Thomas would live to raise 12 children and to see the Federation of Australia. With hard work, Thomas prospered in his new home and was was able to retire comfortably.

As this is an electroinic work it will be easy for me to revise and republish as new infomation comes to hand. The Copyright Notice & Privacy Statement page will give a version number of the revision of this document.

A Brief History

Thomas John Carlill was born 11 July 1822 in London, England, and died 6 January 1913 in Mosman, Sydney, NSW. He married Ann Burnett 9 July 1847 in St Alban's Church, Musswellbrook, NSW, daughter of Richard Burnett and Sarah Hichman. She was born 17 March 1831 in Maitland, NSW, and died 28 February 1911 in Mosman, Sydney, NSW. Her parents have an even greater tie to Australia's early history as they were both transported here as convicts.

After emergrating to Australia in the 1840's Thomas went on to become an important member of the Northern New South Wales comunities of Casio & Lismore. Thomas and Ann raised a total of 12 children. A present count, there are over 400 decendants of Thomas and Ann.

The following pages are a small glimpse into Thomas's life.

Collections for a History of The Ancient Family of Carlisle:

The book Collections for a History of The Ancient Family of Carlisle, Carlisle, Nicholas. (1822): <http://books.google.com.au/books?id=46tCAAAAYAAJ> has been a valued resource for those researching Carlisle family history. Nicholas Carlisle publish this book in 1822 with the aim of tracing the male heir of Michael, fourth and last Lord Carlyle of Torthorwald. The book contains Genealogies of Carlisle's and the histories of the many towns in England they lived in.

As my Carlill ancestors can be traced to Whitby, Yorkshire, England I have used the this chapter as a starting point for my research. From page 360 the Carlill's of Whitby are listed. On page 361 a Family Tree is shown and this has formed the basis of my research. Where possible I have confirmed the information detailed in the tree and also added additonal information as it has come to hand.

T J Carlill

The most complete information on the late T.J Carlill was printed by the Northern Star in 1913 as an obituary. I have added to this in places to flesh out the story with extra information that has come to hand during my research.

The following notice amplifies the particulars published last week in the "Star" of the life of that grand old pioneer, Mr T.J Carlill, who passed away in his 92nd year at his residence 'Malton' Harbour Street, Mosman, last week. The late Mr Carlill was (the second and) youngest son of Captain Peter Carlill of Whitby, Yorkshire (England), the descendant of an old Yorkshire seafaring family. Mr Carlill's grandfather on his mothers side, Captain Cole RN, was taken prisoner by the French and kept in France a number of years, but he managed to get back to England and fought in the Battle of Trafalgar, he lived to the age of 96 years. When a boy the late Mr Carlill was appointed to the merchant ship 'William Harris' (commander Henry Terry), his first voyage being to Australia in the year 1836. The 'William Harris' arrived in Sydney on 25/26 May 1836 having sailed from Calcutta on the 25 Febraury 1836 with a load of wheat. The 'William Harris' made an earlier journey to Auastralia in 1835 and it unknown whether Thomas was aboard for this voyage.

After some time at sea, visiting many parts of the world, he decided on the next trip to Australia to go on the land. Current research indicates that Thomas arrived in Australia to stay on 12 December 1837. An inpesction on crew lists in England is required to verify his last voyage on the 'William Harris' as this type of record does not exist in Australia for this period. After a few years experience 'out back' and at the age of 25 he became station manager for Mr Edward Hamilton of 'Callaroy', where he lived for many years, and married his wife, who only entered 'the bourne from which no traveller returns' a short time ago. Mr Carlill managed the sheep stations and the late Mr G Spark was associated with Mr Hamilton as manager of the cattle Station.

Finding his stations on the Hunter not large enough, Mr Hamilton purchased 'Wooroowoolgen', which also carried the out-stations of 'Wyan Wyan', 'Tatham', and 'Gowan Gowan' now 'Ellangowan'. Thinking sheep would do well on those placed Mr Hamilton sent Mr Carlill up to prepare for the arrival of the flocks and to manage. Both he and Mrs Carlill came by sailing vessel in the year 1851. When they arrived on the Richmond there was but a small settlement at Blackwell, now Wardell, and dense scrub lined the banks until Coraki, the home of the Yabsley family, was reached. Another stretch then of bush until a few settlers were encountered at Pelican tree and then on to Tatham.

A thorough inspection of the land assured Mr Carlill that the country was not by any means suitable for sheep on account of wet seasons, foxtail grass and so on. He at once informed Mr Hamilton, and the sheep, which had been brought as far as Armidale were taken back to Hunter.

Mr Harry O'Brien of Bathurst, grandfather of Mr H O'Brien Wilson had found out that boiling the cattle down for tallow paid better than selling them at the then low price of the market. These boiling-down establishments came to the squatters as a boon, and on Mr Carlill's advice Mr Hamilton erected immense works at Tatham and Woram and he was put in charge of them.

The Bundock family, of Wyangerie, Irving of Tomki, and Campbell of Tunstall Station, who had condemned the breeding of sheep on the rivers, all followed the example set by boiling-down works. Mr Spark was sent up to manage 'Wooroowoolgen', and on his purchasing "Roseberry" station, the late Mr Donald Campbell was for many years in charge there.

Mr Carlill now entered into the timber trade, Cedar getting being most profitable in those days. In 1869 or 1870 he started a butchering business in Casino and was one of the first to build a substantial house. At that time there were only three houses in Casino. In 1876 he brought Mr John Grimes estate (Springrove), situated near Tomki station and added to it by selection till he had 5000 acres, rich in timber and natural grasses, for the fine herd of Herefords of undoubted quality he had gathered. This was where the only beef cattle were reared. The old gentleman was looked on as a wonderful judge of these beasts. In 1897 he sold 'Springrove' and purchased 'Maltron' 16 Harbour Street, Mosman, Sydney NSW where he resided since. Of wonderful vitality, this fine stamp of colonists hale and hearty almost to the last, passed peacefully away surrounded by many members of his family, failure of the hearts actions closing the life of one of whom none could speak but good."

The Barque William Harris

In Richard Weatherill's book "The Ancient Port of Whitby and its Shipping" (1908) there is a 'William Harris' mentioned as being built in Whitby in 1816 by Robert Barry, being launched on Oct 22. It was owned by John Barry of Barry & Co. It was 101ft and 2ins long and 28ft 2ins wide. In 1837 Robert Barry owned 40 shares of it, Thos Barry 16 and W Brodrick, of Bow Church Yard, owned the remaining 8 parts. It was lost in 1843.

The barque 'William Harris' was a large three masted sailing ship with a tonnage of 342t that carried both merchandise and passengers. Her home port was Whitby but in the period of interest sailed from London commanded by Henry Terry. In 1834 she underwent large repairs, was re-rigged as a barque, and had a new deck made from Cedar fitted. Until these repairs she was classified as a A class vessel. This is the First description of First class. After the repairs the 'William Harris' was classified as Æ which is the Second description of First class. In 1838 and in 1840 she underwent further repairs and still retained the Æ classification.

Voyages of the William Harris

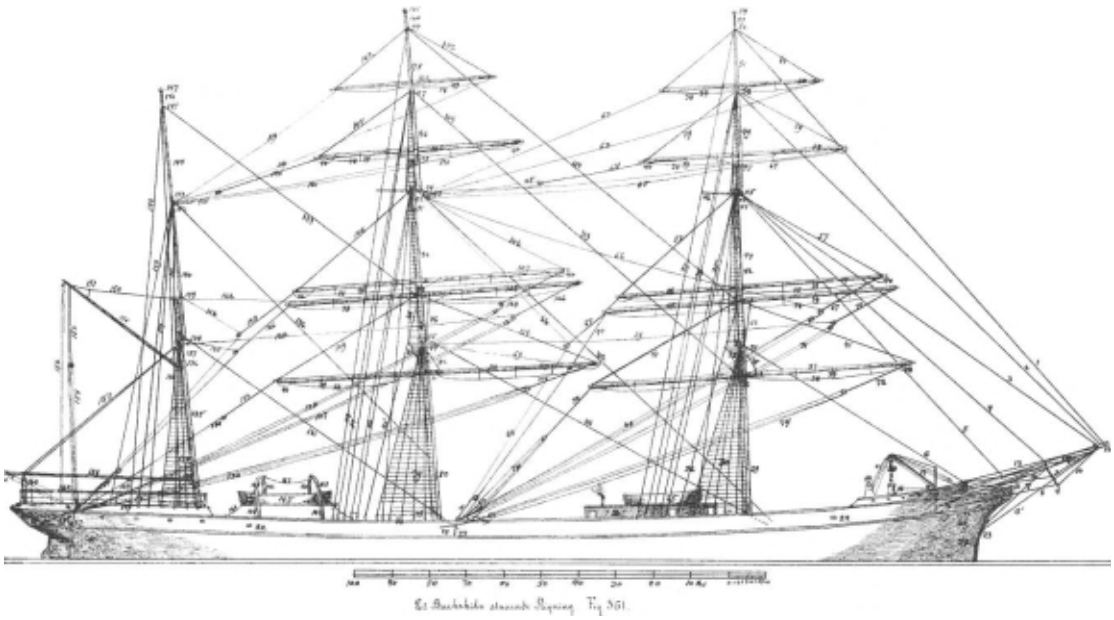
During the period of interest (1835-1840) when Thomas Carlill was a possible crew member of this vessell it made the following voyages.

Departure Location	Date	Destination	Arrival Date	Cargo
London	27 March 1835	Australia	August 11 1835	merchandise and passangers
Calcutta	25 February 1836	Australia	25/26 May 1836
Australia	16/17 October 1836	London		colonial produce
London	20 July 1837	Australia	12 December 1837	merchandise and passangers
Australia	23 November 1840	Gaum

There is a period from late 1838 until May 1840 which is unaccounted for, the ship may have plied other routes or have been layed up.



Casino & District

Casino is situated in the Northern Rivers area on the Far North Coast of New South Wales. The town lies 744 km by road north of Sydney and 225 km south of Brisbane, and is located approximately 60 kms from the coast. Rich timber, grazing and dairying country surrounds this Richmond River town, which is known as a centre for the beef industry.

Allan Cunningham (1791-1839), was a British-born explorer and botanist who explored large tracts of inland New South Wales, Australia. In 1816 he travelled to New South Wales, where he took part in several expeditions in and beyond the Blue Mountains near Sydney. In 1817 he joined the exploration of the Lachlan River led by John Oxley, collecting plant specimens. He then spent five years with Philip Parker King's coastal surveys studying Australia's coastal plants. During these years he discovered many uncatalogued species, which he recorded and systematized. In 1823 Cunningham returned to the Australian interior.

In 1827 he set out on an expedition north of Bathurst and first explored the Casino area , which was eventually settled by squatters Henry Clay and George Stapleton in 1840 when they established Casino Station. The town of Casino was gazetted in 1855 and the streets retain many fine examples of the original architecture. Education came to the town in 1857 when a private school was opened.

The first pioneers trekked overland from the Clarence River district in search of the 'red gold' or cedar trees. Casino's recorded history began in 1840 when squatters Henry Clay and George Stapleton drove their herds over the Richmond Range from Tabulam and settled on the Richmond River. To their 30,720 acre grazing run they gave the name "Cassino".

In 1844, Clark Irving purchased the run and renamed it "Tomki", but the settlement at the Falls, which was one of the few places a bullock dray could cross the river in safety, retained the name of Cassino. This was later changed to Casino, the first official use of the name appearing in a report to the Surveyor-General by licensed Surveyor F. S. Peppercorne following his survey of the site for the town in 1855.

The stations immediately encircling Casino were Wooroowoolgan on the south side of the river Runnymede to the north and Tomki stretching downstream. This initial period of settlement introduced the pastoral era, which was to prove the mainstay of the district for many decades. Timber, dairying and beef cattle have each played their part in the development of the district.

Dairying dominated the early farming of the shire but today much of the land has been turned over to raising beef cattle. Casino is known as the Beef Capital of Australia due to the large centre of beef production. This aspect is celebrated each year during Beef Week.

The present population is 11,800 most of whom live in the town of Casino which straddles the Richmond River. The township lies on the Richmod River, a popular spot for visitors due to its rapids, scenery and weirs, making it a fishing and water sport venue. The towns and villages in the Richmond River Valley in Northern New South Wales offer a rich diversity of experiences. From the rolling hinterland hills, with views of World Heritage listed national parks to the views of the Pacific Ocean.

Coraki

PIONEERING DAYS

THE township of Coraki, which is situated at the junction of the north and south arms of the Richmond River, was called Hooraki, Cooriki or Kurrachee by the Aborigines, Meaning 'Meting of the waters'. It is hard to imagine now tat when the village was founded by William Yabsley in 1849, Casino had one store and a hotel and Lismore was only a small cattle station. William Yabsley and his family obtained the lease of Brook Station and the first permanent settlement was established, with William building his shipyard just above 'The Junction', as it was first called, on the main arm.

Many Ships and small river boats were launched in the next few years, and he soon opened a store for necessary provisions for the convenience of cedar-cutters, as supplies were difficult to obtain due to the dangers of crossing the shallow bar at the mouth of the river.
In those days transport was almost entirely by water, and Coraki was the busiest inland port on the Richmond where its ideal location saw local cedar and pine being shipped to cities and towns around Australia.

THE VILLAGE GROWS

IN 1866 plans were drawn up for the Village of Coraki, and about this time the first general store and the first hotel opened on Richmond Terrace.
In 1858 William Yeager arrived, bringing the first steam drogher (tug) to the Richmond in 1863. He established his business with a mill, wharves and shipyards across the river at Oakland, Coraki.

In the decades to follow Coraki became a hive of activity in the Rivertown district. Sugar cane was introduced to Coraki farmers by cuttings from the Hunter River in 1866 by Rev Thom, beginning another productive industry for the region.
Without doubt Coraki's growth and prosperity as an inland port was largely due to the business enterprise of the Yabsley and Yeager families, who were the Richmond River's largest shipowners at the time.

Coraki Post Office had been opened in 1870 and the Police Station in 1881, while in 1886 the North Coast Steam Navigation company established its Head Office at Coraki, and Louis Benaud chose the village as the publishing place for his newspaper, ' The Richmond River Herald'. Printed on paper with a pinkish tone, the Herald was commonly referred to as 'the Pink'un', and had a wide circulation, and is still regarded as one of the best newspapers which was printed on the lower river. Today the Coraki Public School still issues a news-sheet, printed on the appropriate shade, which is entitled 'The Pink Paper'.

In 1878 the Commercial Bank opened a branch in Coraki and in that same year the township grew considerably with the sale of a number of town blocks on which many of the grand old houses of the day along with several new shops were erected.

In 1876 he brought Mr John Grimes estate (Springrove), situated near Tomki station and added to it by selection till he had 5000 acres, rich in timber and natural grasses, for the fine herd of Herefords of undoubted quality he had gathered. This was where the only beef cattle were reared. The old gentleman was looked on as a wonderful judge of these beasts. In 1897 he sold "Springrove" and purchased "Malton" 16 Harbour Street, Mosman where he resided since. Of wonderful vitality, this fine stamp of colonists hale and hearty almost to the last, passed peacefully away surrounded by many members of his family, failure of the hearts actions closing the life of one of whom none could speak but good."

TRAM ACCIDENTS
Several persons were treated yesterday at the Sydney Hospital for injuries sustained whilst travelling In trams, but fortunately no one was seriously hurt. Thomas Carlill, an elderly man, residing at Harbour-street, Mos- man, was knocked off a King-street tram. It appears that he was getting from one com- partment to another, when a car passing in the opposite direction brushed him off. He was taken by Traffic-constable Flemming to the hospital, where it was found that his in- juries consisted of abrasions to the hand and slight hurt to the back.

The Barque William Harris

The barque William Harris was a large three masted sailing ship with a tonnage of 342t that carried both merchandise and passengers. She was built in Whitby, Yorkshire England in 1816 and was owned by Barry & Co. Her home port was Whitby but in the period of interest sailed from London commanded by Henry Terry. In 1834 she underwent large repairs and had a new deck made from Cedar fitted. Until these repairs she was classified as a A class vessel. This is the First description of First class. After the repairs the William Harris was classified as Æ which is the Second description of First class. In 1838 and in 1840 she underwent further repairs and still retained the Æ classification.
Voyages of the William Harris
During the period of interest (1835-1840) when Thomas Carlill was a possible crew member of this vessell it made the following voyages.

DepartureLocation/ Date DestinationArrival Date Cargo
London 27 March 1835 Australia August 11 1835 merchandise and passengers
Australia 25 October 1835 Calcutta wheat
Calcutta 25 February 1836 Australia 25/26 May 1836
Australia 16/17 October 1836 London colonial produce
London 20 July 1837 Australia 12 December 1837 merchandise and passengers
London 1 May 1840 Australia 28 September 1840 merchandise
Australia 23 November 1840 Gaum

There is a period from late 1838 until May 1840 which is unaccounted for, the ship may have plied other routes or have been layed up.

Richmond River.

Ann Burnett

Ann was one of the first white women in Casino. It is told that another white woman living in Ballina, hearing of Ann, was so anxious to speak to another white woman that she dressed as a man and walked to Casino.

The first Christmas the Carlill family had at "Springgrove" Ann bought fruit for the cakes and puddings from Tomki Station.

The relationship with the blacks in the area is told to be good, although on one occasion when Thomas was away Ann became rather worried. An old man blackfellow shared her concern and persuaded Ann to give the camp black a large dose of Epsom salts, and he himself sleep on the veranda. This was the only incident of this nature. Ann had talked of the distant sound of the blacks camp being part of life, barking of the dogs, the laughter & squealing of the piccanninies until suddenly one day she became aware of a great silence. The last dog and piccanniny they had gone on walkabout.

Daniel Dotchon Carlill

Further information about Daniel is unknown. All that is known is that he was listed as being alive at the time of his father's death in 1913.

Leonard Fredrick Carlill

Len, purchased a property at Goolmanager from Rutland's in 1903. This property was passed onto Len Carlill Jnr.

Ada Angelina Carlill

Member of the Society of Women Painters (Sydney, N.S.W) in 1924 and exhibited in with this group in the same year.

In December 1925 she held an exhibition with fellow-artists Jeannie Lesslie, Edith Sterling Levis, Regine Madsen and Lily Whitney at Anthony Hordern's Gallery in Sydney. The exhibition was of hand-made pottery with designs of Australian flora and fauna.

The Sun, Thursday 17th December 1925, p.21

"Women Potters - Exhibition of Work.

Five women potters - Ada Carlill, Mabel Lesslie, Edith Sterling Levis, Regine Madsen and Lily Whitney - are showing examples of their skill at an exhibition opened yesterday at Anthony Hordern's fine art gallery. Typically Australian are the designs of kookaburras, black swans, red gum ...lps [3], possums and native wild flowers. A squat bowl of brown pottery by M. Lesslie has a delightful design of brown boronia. Black swans, with their scarlet bills making a strong contrast are used with good effect on another vase. Mrs E Levis has chosen native bears to pattern a blue bowl. There are several attractive pottery lamp stands, among them being a grey glazed stand encircled with possums. Mabel Lesslie also exhibits a tall blue vase with penguins [4].

Pottery baskets are an innovation, and an artistic one of dull blue adorned with flannel flower has been made by A. Carlill, who is also responsible for some blue jars. A display of unfinished articles of pottery ready to be painted and glazed is included in R.Marsden's work."
